

Leading with Heart: A Heart of the Healer Retreat Series

A program specifically designed for employees in formal and informal leadership positions

As leaders in healthcare today, we face unprecedented stress and change. From every direction come fundamental questions about the future state of healthcare. While the forces that challenge us are largely external, much of what can help us may be found within — and is available in abundance. Come join others like yourself who want to explore new ways to sustain their connection to their professional calling. Discover a unique kind of professional development — one that deepens self-awareness and renews personal energy and vitality.

Heart of the Healer retreats model skills and practices in community for exploring vocation, staying wholeheartedly engaged in one's work, employing deeper listening and building trustworthy relationships. Through such practices you can find renewed clarity and commitment to your profession along with the courage to act with integrity on what matters most to you.
